MISSOULA--

Approximately 350 high school coeds from throughout Montana will converge on the University of Montana campus Saturday (June 21) for the 22nd annual Montana Girls State.

The nine-day conference, scheduled for the first time in its history on the Missoula campus, will include many well-known Montanans.

James P. Lucas, Miles City, speaker of the Montana House of Representatives, will deliver the final address at the Girls State graduation ceremony Saturday, June 28.

Other speakers include Col. S.W. Hancock, Helena, chief of the Montana Highway Patrol; Dr. Robert L. Van Horne, dean of the UM pharmacy school; Mrs. Delores Colburg, Helena, state superintendent of public instruction; Thomas J. Collins, director of UM public services, and E. Gardner Brownlee, Missoula, Fourth Judicial District judge.

During the week the coeds will be learning about functions of city, county and state governments. Girls State participants will elect officials on the three levels.
